OIL PRESS

Our experts designed the presses of single-phase pressure to obtain rape oil on cold technology. The presses of this type have some advantages: 1) to obtain oil from rape without heat treatment of seeds. It considerably saves energy and cost; 2) to adjust a pressure parameter at the cone during the operation of a press.

These oil presses are made as a single-screw press having a vertical split-face loose pressing cage. The press is driven by a three-phase current motor through a cylindrical or planetary drive.

The rapidly wearing parts of a horizontal press duct are armored. The screw shaft rests upon one point on the bed plate of a press. When installing a power unit, it is equipped with the inverter control of a feeder drive or a variator that allows to regulate the main shaft loading within a large scale. As a result, oil output increases.
